
Details make the difference

In alignment with our mission to use only the very best materials to make Ride products, we recently introduced an ultra-breathable, 3D mesh liner option for the Ride Custom Back.

It's already obvious that this new liner is superior in every way to the original composite foam liner (which will be discontinued). While allowing increased air flow, the ultra-breathable liner retains even less moisture than the original, making it easier to wash and quicker to dry. Should they be needed, in-field modifications are a breeze.

Explore your natural curiosity

In honor of Earth Week... here's a resource for thought-provoking free talks, focused on the environment, from the Aspen Ideas Festival, just a few hours "uphill" from Ride's headquarters in Colorado. Check out the talks like "The Whale and the Wind Turbine: Innovation Inspired by Animals" or "Reversing Extinction and Re-Wilding the World," among others, here.

Just right... the Java Back

Ride's Java Back meets or beats the weight of other back supports in its category... plus, the Java Back blows the competition away in fit and performance, the most important criteria of all.

The highly-adjustable Java Back enables precise positioning for optimal stability and comes in three heights and two depths depending on the level of support desired.
