

We're grateful for your interest in and use of Ride seating solutions.
Here's to a wonderful start to the holiday season!

Connecting with your seating team: are you in the driver's seat?

It's vitally important to get the most out of your wheelchair / seating evaluation and delivery process. Learn from this expert panel about practical ways you can take charge and help the process go smoothly. The zoom session was recorded last month as part of Complex Rehab Technology Awareness Day.

Ever wonder how advocacy for complex rehab technology works?

Each fall Complex Rehab Technology (CRT) advocates usually fly in to Washington, D.C., to educate congressional lawmakers on CRT-related issues. This year, delegations from each state met with healthcare liaisons in a virtual format to discuss their biggest concerns. Each delegation is composed of CRT suppliers, manufacturers and end users. ## Codi's life

During recent Complex Rehab Technology (CRT) advocacy sessions, we had the opportunity to learn about Codi... and thought you might enjoy watching this talk by Codi and her mother, Jennifer, presented at TEDxGrandJunction (Colorado) in 2020.

“I don't have to chase extraordinary moments to find happiness -- it's right in front of me if I'm paying attention and practicing gratitude.”

Fun finds / resources

- UNITE4CRT, a "small group with an Extra Loud Voice," meets online on the third Tuesday of each month at 7pm ET. Complex rehab technology users, suppliers, clinicians, manufacturers, caregivers, family, and friends share stories and provide education in a welcoming and supportive environment. Find out more here.
- “RUN,” is the first major thriller in 70 years to star a wheelchair user. The film features Kiera Allen. The actress says she instantly connected with the character, whom she saw as an extension of herself: a wheelchair user, yes, but also driven, passionate, resourceful, and physically resilient.
